

It is disturbing that there is a proposed action to enable "established business relationship firms" to violate the no-call list. I would rather have them use mail or even internet, if necessary. Any bank or business that would seek to negate my explicit wishes needs to find a new customer.